Introduction

NGO's and corruption PwC

Drivers for anti-corruption initiatives

- Drivers for corporations to invest in anti-corruption programs:
  - Compliance with national and international regulations like UK bribery act, US Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA), etc.
  - Business needs:
    - ✓ Preserving good reputation,
    - ✓ Being a trusted and sustainable business partner who complies with the vendor and customer's expectations,
    - ✓ Preserving the physical integrity of staff and management (operational business continuity),
    - ✓ Attracting the best professionals under the best conditions,
    - ✓ Avoiding financial penalties...
  - Reality entrepreneurs and sales people often accept that when doing business with and in certain countries, you need to comply with "The local way of doing business".

Drivers for anti-corruption initiatives

 Governments and intergovernmental organisation hire audit firms to perform preventive and reactive audits on beneficiaries of their funding.

Based on our experience, in Belgium, there is still a long way to go in respect to anti-corruption awareness

- on what corruption is,
- ☐ what the organisation's exposure is,
- $\Box$  what the impact is,
- □ what the required investment is to do something about it.

NGO's in the audit workspace

Audit firms are often exposed to NGO's in their audit work for funding organisations.

The type of audit work we perform at NGO's are, among others,

- Audit of the well spending of donations;
- Audit compliance with anti-corruption regulations of contracts with governments;
- Preventive assessments of potential beneficiaries of funds (among them also NGO's) in their capacity to manage funds;
- Reactive investigations based on suspicions or whistleblowing in respect of fraud, conflict of interest and corruption
